BOLIVIA — ANDES

INESAD — Instituto de Estudios Avanzados en Desarrollo

Focal points: Javier Aliaga · Beatriz Muriel

LEARNING

Family-based production, food systems and territorial capacities in the Andes

The Bolivian node brings expertise in research and development policies, family farming, production systems and the analysis of economic and social capacities. Experiences relating to quinoa, food systems, producer participation and access to information provide opportunities to explore how productive activities can be strengthened while preserving the environmental and social functions of Andean territories.

Woman growing Imperial quinoa in the Bolivian Altiplano region. Photo courtesy of INESAD (2023).