BRAZIL — AMAZONIA (PARÁ / AMAPÁ)

NAEA / Universidade Federal do Pará · IFAP

Focal points: Oriana Almeida · Ana Karolina Lima

GOVERNING TOGETHER

Rural family-based production and governance of the commons

Amazonia offers experiences in which family-based production, conservation, forests, fisheries, agroecology and food systems are closely interconnected. The case provides an opportunity to examine how communities, producers, academic institutions and territorial organisations develop rules, knowledge and capacities to manage shared resources. Fisheries and community-based management can be presented as examples within a broader framework of governance of the Amazonian commons.

Professor Ana Karolina Lima and a family farmer in Amapá. Photo courtesy of Ana K. Lima (2024).